

A CATALOGUE OF MAPS OF THAILAND IN THE MUSEUM OF THE ROYAL THAI SURVEY DEPARTMENT, BANGKOK*

Bangkok

In April of 1966 I was privileged to gain access to the Museum of the Royal Thai Survey Department for the purpose of making an inventory of the unique collection of maps therein—undoubtedly the most extensive and varied in Thailand. This work took the better part of three months as the collection was, unordered; the Military Survey, being concerned, quite naturally, with current maps of which there is a well cared for stock.¹

Amid a number of maps of various foreign areas, many of historic value, and colourful charts treating such diverse subjects as the human digestive tract and Royal Thai Military insignia, is a core series on which is depicted Thailand, in whole and in part, since the latter decades of the nineteenth century and even before. This 'Thai series', of inestimable historic significance, is here catalogued in four classes: 1) index maps; 2) small scale maps, whereon is shown the nation or a substantial portion thereof on scales usually smaller than 1:1,000,000; 3) medium scale maps, whereon is shown a district or

* I am indebted to Lieutenant General Somboon Vichitranoot, Director of the Royal Thai Survey Department, for allowing me to catalogue the collection of maps in the Museum; to Colonel Phak Tamsombat, who offered every convenience; and to Lieutenants Winya Kulapwong and Seree Prompubes, and Miss Yenrudee Chaunkasem, who were unfailing aides.

1) Only maps in the Museum appear here. The Survey Department maintains a 'store' where indices to all purchasable current maps may be consulted—most of these maps are not in the Museum.

province or group of provinces on scales generally between 1:25,000 and 1:1,000,000; and 4) Large scale maps, whereon is shown a village or town or city or portion thereof on scales usually larger than 1:25,000. Each class is divided into 'individual maps' and 'map series': the former being arranged by date in a sequences beginning with the most recent; the latter by scale in a sequence beginning with the smallest. Undated individual maps are assigned tentative approximate dates based on the authority of Royal Thai Survey personnel and/or details shown and are inserted in the sequence. Obviously, a particular assigned date may be in error, but most will be near enough the truth.

Entries are ordered internally as follows: title of map (followed by title in English if originally in Thai); date (followed by Christian Era if originally in Buddhist or other era)—if 'survey' preceded by 'S', if resurvey preceded by 'RS', if compilation preceded by 'C', if 'amendment' preceded by 'A', if 'drafted' preceded by 'D', if 'publication' preceded by 'P', if 'republishing' preceded by 'RP'; scale as a ratio; type of directional indicator; type of elevation indicator; features shown if unusual for scale; number of sheets to map and whether in black & white or colour, approximate size of sheet in centimeters; number of copies held, whether backed or not, condition (good, fair, poor) and language used. Publisher. There is some inconsequential deviation from this format to accommodate certain series.
