

If my memory serves me rightly, similar abnormalities in development have already been recorded twice for this same species.

MALCOLM SMITH.

Feb., 1917.

No. IX. A New Frog for Bangkok.

To the list of Batrachians for Siam, given earlier in this number of the Journal, another frog may be added to those already found in Bangkok, namely Rana cancrivora, making a total now of 14 species found in and about the Capital. This frog is common at Petriu, a little to the East of Bangkok, where the country is of a precisely similar nature, and its occurrence, therefore in the City, was to be expected.

MALCOLM SMITH.

April, 1917.