

EDITORIAL

With some satisfaction the present volume reaches the target aimed at in having some 351 pages of diverse articles fairly covering two fields of natural history, botany and zoology with a touch on forestry and meteorology as well.

Besides foreign scientists a number of our local members are also contributing to the volume. It is indeed an achievement of the Bulletin in encouraging the study on natural history of Thailand and neighbouring countries. We are looking forward to the progressive activity of the Bulletin, which depends mostly to members and friends of the Society. Any original articles of scientific value are always heartily welcome.

It is also our great pleasure to record here the indispensable service of E.C. DICKINSON, Esq. of the Pronesiam, Bangkok in so kindly devoting his time to edit articles pertaining to the ornithological study for this volume, and we are sincerely hoping that he will continue to render his service as ever.

Our members will certainly observe the improvement in printing of the volume, which is really credited to the PRACHANDRA PRESS, our printer since 1947.
