

EDITORIAL

It is a good and promising omen that for the first time since the Second World War there occurs an accumulation of manuscripts ahead the dead line. This means that the Bulletin has become more known to scientific workers and it is therefore to be expected that the first issue of Volume 23 will be out in circulation within the first half of 1969.

The Natural History covers a very wide field of biological sciences, but it is felt that some need further scientific analyses. It would thus be appropriate if contributions pertaining to the mammalogy of Southeast Asia would be available for publication. Again we wish to tender our gratitude to Mr. E.C. DICKINSON of the Pronesiam, Bangkok for ever readily editing the articles on ornithology.

We sincerely share the deep grief of the family of Mr. Sanan BUNYASIRIBHAND, owner of Prachandr Press for his untimely death on 26th January 1968. Under his management the Prachandr Press efficiently served the Society for decades.

T. Smitinand
The Forest Herbarium
Royal Forest Department
Bangkok

A.W. Koenigsfeldt
Royal Danish Embassy
Bangkok

EDITORIAL

It is a good and growing concern that for the first time since the Second World War there occurs an accumulation of manuscripts about the dead line. This means that the Bulletin has become more popular to scientific workers and it is therefore to be expected that the first issue of Volume 25 will be out in circulation within the first half of 1958.

The Natural History covers a very wide field of biological sciences, but it is felt that some need further scientific analysis. It would thus be appropriate if contributions pertaining to the management of Southern Asia would be available for publication. Again we wish to thank our gratitude to Mr. E. C. Deane, Director of the Forestry Department, for ever ready editing the articles on ornithology.

We sincerely thank the deep staff of the Faculty of the East Asia Department, under the leadership of the Faculty of the East Asia Department, for their management of the Bulletin. We also wish to thank the Faculty for their efforts in the past few decades.

J. H. Knapp
Editor

T. J. J. J.
Editor